IT'S A PLEASURE FOR THE TEACHER TO INSTRUCT GIRLS SO DAIN'TILY GARBED

What pleasure for the school teacher if all school girls were as daintily clad as these. The frock seen at the left is made of blue serge and is most simple in style. The skirt is pleated and the button and braid effect on the waist is the only trimming, yet the little frock has an unmistakably refined touch. The waist worn by the girl at the right is made of rose-colored crepe de chine, hand smocked with edging of baby Irish crochet around the collar.

Dorothy Dix Talks

DISCOVERY OF AN UNKNOWN SPECIES.

By DOROTHY DIX, The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer

We have grown so accustomed to the New Woman that she has ceased to be a novelty. We have also grown inured to the New Child—Heaven help us—who has to have the best of everything and who monopolizes the conversation, and holds the center of the stage generally. Are we now to have the New Man, and above all the New Husband with different tastes in women and different ideals of wifely conduct from those cherished by his sex from Adam to Wilson?

It looks that way. More! I myself, have been privileged to gaze upon and hold speech with two of this new species.

The first New Man was, oddly enough, a successful moving picture producer. Perhaps he was fed up, as our English cousins say, on feminine pulchritude and was satiated with large, lovely eyes that didn't have a ray of intelligence in them, and a weary of little heads and golden or raven black tresses were nothing but solid ivory. Anyway, this is what the man said to me in regard to his demands in a wife:

"I don't care a rap for beauty. When I go to choose a wife I am not going to take a second glance at her complexion, or notice the color of her eyes or her hair. Neither do I care whether she is fat or thin. The one thing that I am going to look for in a wife is BRAINS."

"I don't mean canned college brains, either. Any girl with a good memory can grind through college and acquire enough text book knowledge to entitle her to a degree. Why, some of the stupidest women and the biggest bores I have ever met were college graduates who were entitled to tack half a dozen letters after their names."

No, when I speak of a woman having brains I mean a woman who has got native intelligence, a quick wit, a keen comprehension and a mental alertness that makes her keep alive in touch with everything that's going on in the world.

"That's the kind of woman who makes a wife of whom a man never grows tired. Conversation in the home of a woman like that never slumps down into a dreary recital of the servants' imperfections, the high cost of butcher's meat and the misdeeds of the children. That kind of a woman can't go down town without seeing a dozen funny little things that make good stories."

"She always reads the last book and has seen the last play, and she can discuss them interestingly with her husband if he has had time to read and see them, too, and if he hasn't, she can tell him all about them so that he won't miss a single one of their good points. Why, I've got a woman friend now that does that for me. She reads the books I can't and administers their contents to me in sort of predigested literary capsules that are extremely stimulating and strengthening to my mind. Do you suppose any man would ever yawn in the face of a wife who has sense enough to keep him entertained? Well I guess not."

"It's the women who hand out luke warm, dish water conversation as the only refreshments at home who drive their husbands out into the wicked world to try to find some sort of diversion that has a little pep and ginger in it. I've often wondered that women never took a tip from the old tale of Scheherazade, who saved her own life, after all her beautiful predeces-

FEW TIMELY SUGGESTIONS FOR HOUSEWIFE

NO NEED TO WASTE

All celery leaves should be dried for seasoning soups, stews and gravies. Save water from potatoes and vegetables for soup.

A small baking powder box, perforated with an ice pick, can be used for celery leaves, onions or spices for seasoning stews or soups, and saves straining, which often causes waste.

Always use pulp from who waste. Put through sieve or colander, add brown sugar, a little cinnamon and ginger and make fruit butter for future use.

There is no need of waste if forethought is used. Cooking economically is a science and is a vocation to be proud of if properly done.

Carrot and Peanut Butter Loaf.—Mix thoroughly three-quarters cup peanut butter, three-fourths cup bread crumbs, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon chopped onion, one well beaten egg. Shape into a loaf, sprinkle with buttered crumbs, place in a well greased pan and bake twenty minutes.

sors had been slain, by keeping her bloodthirsty old guy of a husband so fascinated by her conversation that he hung on her words for a thousand and one nights. Believe me, as a permanent attraction, brains have got beauty lashed to the mast every time.

"Then, too, if I marry a woman with gray matter in her head I shall be sure of domestic happiness, because I will be married to a reasonable creature who will be willing to take matrimony on a give-and-take basis. The only hopeless people in the world are fools. The less brains people have the more full of prejudices they are, the more determined they are to have their own way, the more immovable they are in their point of view. Therefore, when I marry an intelligent woman I shall eliminate the sickening hopelessness of having to deal with a wife who can never get any angle on a subject but her own and who goes into hysterics every time she is crossed."

"As to whether my wife is domestic or not I do not greatly care. There are plenty of good hotels and trained servants to minister to my physical needs. I shall not marry to get a cook but a companion, and as for all of the old looking-up-to-your husband stuff and the sacrificing wife business, I'll pass that up, too."

"I've none of the slave owner instincts. I want my wife to feel free and independent, to develop whatever ability she has and to feel that in marrying me she got a pal instead of a boss. Only an intelligent woman can make a good wife, and that's why I'm going to consider the inside instead of the outside of a maiden's head when I get married."

The other New Man is engaged to a girl who has a wonderful voice that she has spent many years and a fortune in cultivating. The man is deeply and sincerely in love with the girl, but instead of urging her to marry him at once and give up all thought of the public career, of which she has dreamed for so many years, he is putting off their marriage until after the girl has tested out her talent and is absolutely sure of her own heart."

"I might tell Marian," he said, "that home making is a woman's predestined career, that in the end the voice of love is more satisfying than the applause of the multitude, and that she had better croon lullabies over her babies than have a theater rise at her. She would believe me and she would willingly marry me now."

"But the reaction would come, and as she went about her domestic duties she would think with bitterness and regret of the career that she had thrown away and the sacrifices she had made for me and she would eat her heart out with unavailing longing for the opportunity that she had lost."

"I am not going to let her do this. I want her to go on with her studies and to have her chance just as if I had not come into her life."

"Perhaps she will find out that her talent is not as great as she thought it was, and she will come to me gladly, and my love will make up to her for her disappointment. Perhaps she will succeed. If she does and will marry me, I will not stand between her and her career. I want her to go on and make the most of her talent. A woman who sacrifices a gifted man is not selfish enough to require him to sacrifice his genius on the altar of domesticity. Why should a man not be big enough and love a woman enough to be willing to share her gifts with the world and to glory in her success?"

"I love Marian enough to want her to have a happy life. That is not possible unless she is able to express herself along her own individual lines. I have my profession, why should she not have hers?"

"Marriage is a long journey. People should be very sure that the two who elect to take it together know their own hearts before they start off. Therefore, I am considering Marian's point of view even more than my own."

Thus spake these two New Men to me. And I thought that if they were the forerunners of a new type of men who picked out sensible women instead of pretty fools for wives and considered the woman's side of matrimony, we would soon be able to dispense with the "Marriage is a failure" slogan.

A WORM'S TURNING.

"You can't be too drastic in your treatment of a nation like Germany," said Admiral Couden Perry at a Cold Springs luncheon.

"You've got to consider Germany as John Nagz considered marriage," said John Nagz.

"John," said Mrs. Nagz, "have you read this book, 'How to Be Happy Though Married'?"

"Nope," said Nagz. "I don't need to. I know how you see, without reading it."

"Well, how then?" said his wife.

"Get a divorce," said he.—"Exchange."

tes. Serve with following sauce: To one-half cup chopped celery add one cup hot water, cook ten minutes, then strain. To the liquid add three-fourths cup milk, thicken with one tablespoon flour rolled in a little butter. Season to taste and pour around loaf.

Plum Pudding Without Sugar or Eggs.—Stir thoroughly together the following ingredients: One cup finely chopped suet, two cups fine bread crumbs, one cup molasses, one cup chopped raisins, one cup currants, one teaspoon (level) salt, one teaspoon each of cloves, cinnamon, allspice and soda, one cup milk, flour enough to make a stiff batter.

Put into well greased pudding mold, cover closely, set into a larger kettle close covered and half full of boiling water, adding more as it boils away. Steam not less than four hours. This pudding is sure to be a success for one containing neither eggs, butter nor sugar. Half will serve eight people, but it can be steamed over again, if kept closely covered in meantime. Serve common sweet sauce.

FASHION HINT

The outstanding feature of this attractive semi-dressy is the high "chin chin" collar of beaver that exemplifies the prevailing mode. The suit is further embellished with buttons of satin and bands of beaver on the skirt. It is fabricated of satin in a wondrous shade of dark blue.

CRANBERRY CATSUP
Take a pint of cranberries, a cup of vinegar and half a cup of water. Put them over fire in a kettle.
Fill a little cloth bag with the following: Two cloves, two whole allspice, pinch of mace, small stick of cinnamon (broken). Put bag in the kettle and bring to a boil, then cook slowly until cranberries are soft. Put through a colander, add a cup of brown sugar, heat again and seal or serve.

EARL L. PACKER NOW FIRST LIEUTENANT

Earl L. Packer of Ogden is now a first lieutenant in the United States army attached to the military staff of Brigadier General William V. Judson at Petrograd, Russia, according to word received by his relatives in Ogden.

Mr. Packer left Washington last January to become a clerk on the embassy staff at Petrograd. Brigadier General Judson is head of the American war mission in the new republic.

Mr. Packer is well known in Ogden, where he was a student at the High school, a clerk in the local railroad office and a reporter on the local papers.

His rapid rise from a clerkship in the embassy to the responsible position he now holds is looked upon with great satisfaction by his relatives and friends in Ogden. Lieutenant Packer has been stationed at Petrograd and has seen the revolution and the other momentous episodes of the making of recent Russian history and in letters sent to his friends and relatives here has referred to them in a short but interesting manner.

He was connected with the embassy staff until the Root commission arrived at Petrograd and then became a clerk

American Grocery Co.

OPENING DAY

Saturday December 8th

OPENING of the American Grocery Company's large, convenient, sanitary and complete-stocked store at 359 Twenty-fourth street, Saturday morning, December 8, marks an advancement in Ogden's retail merchandising affairs of which housewives of the Ogden district will certainly take immediate advantage.

You are invited to attend this opening, to inspect our stock, to discuss prices, to learn the policy of this store. The American Grocery Company Store will be operated on absolutely a cash basis. Telephone orders will always be accepted. Free deliveries will be made, where the order amounts to $3.00 or more, purchased at the store or over the telephone.

Buying at first-hand we are able to give prices that are very low on the highest grades of merchandise. The policy of this store will be to give special attention to the foods made, prepared and packed in Ogden and vicinity.

As members of the United States Food Conservation Commission, we are required to follow government regulations and to limit quantities that are sold—in order that there will be no hoarding. Come to this store tomorrow, look over the stock, inquire as to the price, learn regarding the policy of this store. We will be glad to quote you prices on many other goods not listed below.

on the staff of Brigadier General Judson, when the war mission was organized. His latest advance came from the diligent work he did at the embassy and on the staff of the commission. The young man's mother, Mrs. Ellen E. Packer, lives at 2933 Grant avenue. His brothers are Harold J. Packer, court reporter; Clarence H. Packer, chief clerk of the Pacific Fruit express, and Roy Packer, jeweler with P. W. Stecher, all residing in Ogden.

Historical controversies are creeping into the public schools, since in the larger cities there is such an increasing attendance of various races.

The class in history had been called and the teacher was giving a review lesson.

"Who discovered America?" she asked, directing her gaze upon little Tommy Noyes. The lad grew deathly white and showed much agitation. The teacher, in much surprise, repeated the question.

"Oh, please, ma'am," he finally blurted out, "ask me somethin' else."

Only a clever woman can cultivate her mind and her complexion simultaneously.

SIMPLY UNANSWERABLE. Youth is no barrier to real trouble.

Opportunity

Opportunity is view point—the way you look at things—the far-sightedness of your mental vision.

There is nothing concrete nor tangible about opportunity. It is a latent quality of knowledge. The more a man knows, the more opportunity he discovers in his knowledge.
